Dakota Land, Water, and People Acknowledgment

The Metropolitan Council acknowledges that the land we currently call Minnesota and specifically the seven-county region is the ancestral homeland of the Dakota Oyate who are present and active contributors to our thriving region. As part of the Metropolitan Council's commitment to address the unresolved legacy of genocide, dispossession, and settler colonialism and the fact that government institutions, including the Metropolitan Council, benefitted economically, politically, and institutionally after the forceable removal of the Dakota Oyate, the Metropolitan Council is dedicated to instilling Land, Water, and People Commitments in regional policy. These commitments support the Dakota Oyate, the eleven federally recognized Tribes in Minnesota, Ho-Chunk Nation, and the American Indian Communities representing over 150 diverse Tribal Nations that call the seven-county region home.

Information

1. Regional Flow Cost and Allocation (Kyle Colvin, 651-602-1151)

Staff presented Regional Flow Cost and Allocation. A summary of the presentation was as follows:

- Regional approach provides uniform cost methodology for every community connected to the regional system.
- A community's cost is determined by their proportionate share of the regional wastewater treatment service costs.
- Challenging for some to shift cost allocation paradigm from rate based to proportional share concept.
- A community's proportionate share is in large part driven by their flow contribution which they have some control over. It can be difficult to understand that lower flow can still result in higher cost.
- Strength charges addressed at sources (Industries) versus community wide thus eliminating need for complicated MWC adjustments.
- Potential opportunity to address fluctuating year to year flow/costs by averaging rolling multiple year periods. Disincentive for I/I mitigation work and flow from growth adjusted down by average.
